

HERPETOLOGICAL CONSERVATION AND BIOLOGY

8 May 2007

Volume 2, Number 1

Contents

HerpSpectives	Comments on the descriptions and evaluations of tadpole mouthpart anomalies. Ronald Altig	1
Articles	Demise of translocated populations of Mountain Yellow-legged Frogs (Rana muscosa) in the Sierra Nevada of California. Gary M. Fellers, David F. Bradford, David Pratt, and Leslie Long Wood	5
	Influences of agricultural land use on Clinostomum attenuatum metacercariae prevalence in southern Great Plains amphibians, U.S.A. Matthew J. Gray, Loren M. Smith, Debra L. Miller, and Charles R. Burse	23
	Impact of ammonium nitrate on Wood Frog (Rana sylvatica) tadpoles: Effects on survivorship and behavior. Amber A. Burgett, Christian D. Wright, Geoffrey R. Smith, Doran T. Fortune, and Samuel L. Johnson.	29
	Are embryonic and larval Green Frogs (Rana clamitans) insensitive to road deicing salt? Nancy E. Karraker	35
	Presence of amphibian chytrid fungus, Batrachochytrium dendrobatidis , and other amphibian pathogens at warm-water fish hatcheries in southeastern North America. D. Earl Green and C. Kenneth Dodd	43
	Nesting ecology and hatching success of the Wood Turtle, Glyptemys insculpta , in Quebec. Andrew D. Walde, J. Roger Bider, Denis Masse, Raymond A. Saumure, and Rodger D. Titman.	49
	Nest emergence of Smooth Softshell (Apalone mutica) hatchlings. Michael V. Plummer	61
Techniques	Improving natural history research with image analysis: the relationship between skin color, sex, age and stage in adult Red-spotted Newts (Notophthalmus viridescens viridescens). Andrew K. Davis and Kristine L. Grayson	65
Herps 101	A primer for the morphology of anuran tadpoles. Ronald Altig	71

Inside this issue: Researchers and conservationists often must continue their activities under harsh conditions. Despite the snow, Leslie Wood disassembles equipment from a repatriation experiment in Sequoia National Park, California.
Photographed by: Gary Fellers.

Partner
Organizations:

