The Board of Directors of Herpetological Conservation and Biology elected several new editors to our group in 2014. Please join us to welcome them to our editorial team:

Associate Editors:

Kara Dodge, NOAA Postdoctoral Researcher, Woods Hole, Massachusetts, USA

Brian Shamblin, University of Georgia, Georgia, USA

Don Shepard, University of Central Arkansas, Arkansas, USA (promoted from Assistant Editor)

Assistant Editors:

John E. Herman, Florida Gulf Coast University, Florida, USA

Nathan F. Putman, NOAA Southeast Fisheries Science Center, Florida, USA

Calandra “Cali” Turner Tomaszewicz, University of California, San Diego, California, USA

Signa Gundlach, Southern Nevada Water Authority, Nevada, USA

Also, we wish to thank several long-term editors who have contributed to Herpetological Conservation and Biology, some from the outset nearly 10 years ago. The following have completed their editorial tours:

Christina Davy, Sean Doody, Brian Horne, Amy Lind, David Steen, Richard Vogt, and Rom Whitaker

We hope these changes result in an infusion of expertise to our editorial group to help balance out the departures of those who assisted us in the past. We appreciate the service of our editors, who are the heart of the journal.
